

Baltimore Steel Stories

Posted on June 11, 2015 by Rosemary Feurer

This is the first video for the Baltimore Steel Stories Project out of Towson University's Anthropology Department. About half of the material used in the film are materials found in the basement of the U.S.W.A. Local 2609 hall. This is a collaborative ethnography and a part of a larger project on Baltimore's deindustrialization and the steel industry.
