LAWCHA
The Labor and Working-Class History Association

Welcome to the Contingent Faculty Committee Blog

Posted on August 31, 2016 by Eric Fure-Slocum

Welcome to LAWCHA's blog on contingent faculty and contingent labor! This blog offers an opportunity to share updates, scholarship, opinions, questions, links, and strategies. While the concerns and challenges contingent faculty face will be a main focus of this blog, we hope to engage questions about what the growing presence of adjuncts means for higher education. We also expect that contributions to this blog will begin to connect the history of contingent faculty in academia to the larger history of precarious labor.

Please send contributions for the blog to Eric Fure-Slocum (furesloc@stolaf.edu), chair of LAWCHA's contingent faculty committee.

Author

-
  Eric Fure-Slocum

© LAWCHA. All Rights Reserved.